Alexander J. Bell represents clients of diverse industries in a variety of general litigation matters. His experience includes litigating complex commercial disputes, defending clients in product liability and tort actions, and advising clients in internal and government investigations, white-collar criminal matters, and corporate compliance.

Alexander is involved in all stages of litigation, from formulating strategy to appellate briefing. He is focused on solving clients' most challenging legal issues with creative arguments and cogent writing.

Before joining Blank Rome, Alexander served as a judicial law clerk to the Honorable Eugene B. Strassburger, III of the Superior Court of Pennsylvania. While in law school, Alexander served on the editorial board of the Duquesne Law Review and as a teaching assistant for Legal Research & Writing courses.
