Juliana R. Suleymanov concentrates her practice on a wide range of matrimonial and family law matters.

Prior to joining Blank Rome, Juliana served as a litigation associate at a New York-based law firm where she focused her practice on commercial litigation matters. She has notable experience in securities class action defense, commercial contract disputes, white collar criminal defense, and antitrust litigation. Her experience includes serving as key member of complex commercial and criminal trial teams, drafting pleadings, motions, pre-trial briefs, and mediation statements, preparing for depositions and witness interviews as second-chair, coordinating complex discovery, and conducting legal research and drafting corresponding memoranda.

During law school, Juliana served on the board of the Brendan Moore Trial Advocacy Center and competed in national trial advocacy competitions. Juliana also served as an associate editor and member of the Dispute Resolution Society. Juliana was also an associate editor for the Fordham Urban Law Journal.

Juliana is fluent in Russian.
