Craig Weiner counsels corporations, high-net-worth individuals, investment banks, celebrities, professional athletes, influencers, private equity/hedge funds, and venture companies in litigation, crisis management, and strategic planning. Often called upon to manage high-stakes, emergency situations, clients value his calm and strategic insight as well as his experience and skill at crafting novel solutions for complex problems.

Craig guides clients through high-stakes litigation and contentious negotiations as well as helps facilitate joint ventures and strategic alliances. His practice includes complex financial and investment cases, prosecuting and defending defamation and legal and professional malpractice cases, high-stakes employment litigation, business divorces, fraud actions, and bankruptcy and reorganization, having previously served as debtor's authorized representative and lead counsel in adversary proceedings.

Craig's extensive venture capital and private equity experience includes working closely with domestic and foreign hedge funds, venture companies, high-net-worth individuals, and government funds. He works with publicly traded and private clients in first- and second-round financings, negotiates and drafts sophisticated and complex contracts, and has in-depth experience advising on raising private equity, venture capital, and institutional money.

In addition to his national practice, Craig serves international clients, including private equity funds, high-net-worth families, and investors in Malaysia, Singapore, Hong Kong, Indonesia, China, and Vietnam. A resource for national media, Craig has appeared on CNN and FOX, and contributes thought leadership to Bloomberg BNA, Bitcoin Magazine, Think Advisor, and Law360, among others.
