Michael M. Ogle focuses his practice on structured finance, asset securitization, general corporate finance, private credit, and equipment leasing. Mike counsels borrowers, commercial lenders, private and public companies, financial institutions, private equity firms, and underwriters that are engaged in financing transactions related to real estate, transportation, and other assets.

Over the course of his legal career, Mike has represented issuers, underwriters, loan sellers, and servicers in real estate capital market transactions, with a particular focus on public and private commercial mortgage-backed securitizations. Additionally, he has experience in global transportation finance and has advised clients from the aviation and rail industries, as well as commercial and investment banks, operating lessors, finance companies, funds, and other aircraft investors engaged in financing transactions and asset-backed securitizations utilizing transportation assets.

Prior to embarking on his legal career, Mike flew as an airline transport pilot for a wholly owned subsidiary of Delta Air Lines.

Outside The Firm

In his spare time, Mike loves flying his family to exciting new destinations, cheering on his kids at their sports and extracurricular activities, and embarking on adventures together as a family.
